

ABSTRACT

A selection method, program product and system for determining an appropriate destination, comprising the steps of: automatically selecting one of a plurality of destination methods based on a criteria; calling the selected destination method; and getting at least one direct or indirect reference to the selected destination. In a preferred embodiment, selection is made from at least two of a printer list destination method, a printer destination method, and a print now destination method.

10